Dear Mr. Weisberg,

I have spent considerable time reading your books about the assassination of President Kennedy. I have written to you once before and you were kind enough to take the time to reply.

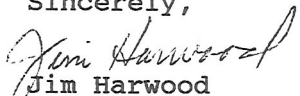

I have sent you a video of a documentary title "The Day a Nation Cried" it is an old documentary with an updated narration. What caught my attention in this video is the filmed footage of Oswald being escorted inside the offices of the Dallas police station. What I see appears to be Billy Lovelady sitting at a desk actually watching Oswald being arrested ! The man that looks like Lovelady is wearing a shirt similar to the man that is in the Altgens photo, the white vertical stripes are broader than Oswalds and I think this pattern would be caught in the Altgens photograph where the Oswald shirt has such fine lines they might not appear even under enlargemnets. (This footage allows you to compare both shirts)

The man resembling Lovelady is seated as Oswald is taken by him. This man has a bald spot on top of his head and appears to look like Lovelady from photos I have seen.

Maybe this footage has already been examined by critics and deemed not to be Lovelady. I wanted you to see it because of all the time and effort you have invested in trying to bring out the truth.

The video is cued to the part in question and lasts approximately 4 seconds.

Sincerely,

Jim Harwood
